

First-time, First-Enrolled Enrollment Outcomes

Completion Rates for Year End: 2024

According to the Federal Title IV Higher Education Amendments of 1998, schools must track the rate at which it takes the school's students to complete their post-secondary education. The cohort of students used to calculate this rate is restricted, by these Amendments, to students who are starting at the school their postsecondary education for the first time since high school. These Amendments also specify that the measurements allow first-time enrollees 150% of the scheduled program length to complete it. As the Certificate Program is three-year program, the calculation of these rates covers four-and-half years. While the calculation of these rates for USIS students covers one-and-half years. Current measurements for the academic year ending 2024 show:

Certificate Programs (3 year) – 70% of first-time, first-enrolled students who enrolled in fall 2021 completed the program as scheduled at the end of the spring 2024 semester.

Independent-Study Program - 89% of first-time, first-enrolled students who enrolled in fall 2023 completed the program as scheduled at the end of the spring 2024 semester.
